Ford huddles with Turk prime minister

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel met with President Ford today and then talked of possibly reopening U.S. bases in his country, saying they were shut "for the time being."

After the breakfast meeting, Demirel told newsmen he and Ford had reviewed troubled relations between their two nations and he added: "As far as Turkey is concerned, these relations are very valuable. We will do our very best not to spoil these relations."

Asked what it would take for Turkey to reopen U.S.-manned bases, Demirel said: "I cannot tell you right now." But at another point he said activities by American military personnel at the bases were halted "for the time being."

Ford said the United States will "do our best to remove any roadblocks" to close ties with Turkey. He said relations between Turkey and the United States were mutually beneficial and of great value to the rest of the Western world.

In advance of the breakfast meeting at the U.S. embassy residence here, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told a Wednesday night news conference that an effort would be made to "bring about a radical solution rather than a stopgap one" to the problems that led Turkey to halt all American military activities at the bases last Saturday.

Kissinger did not elaborate but said he and Ford wanted to discuss with Demirel "measures that might make it possible to put our relationship to Turkey on a new basis."

The Demirel meeting opens Ford's busy schedule for the day. The President also holds luncheon talks with the leaders of Britain, France and West Germany and attends two formal meetings of the European Security Conference.

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and, to some extent, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing are reported to lack full confidence in Ford's economic policies at home and are fearful the American recovery from recession might be aborted, leading to new economic difficulties for Western Europe.

Kissinger acknowledged that economic subjects would probably be discussed at the four-power meeting hosted by British Prime Minister Harold Wilson. But he sought to play down this aspect of the meeting, describing it simply as a regular, informal meeting of the nations that have a special responsibility for maintaining the post-World War II status of Berlin.

The highlight of Ford's day Wednesday was the first of two meetings with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. Kissinger said the discussions would be continued Saturday morning, "hopefully leading to an agreement to implement the Vladivostok decisions."

He referred to the broad outlines of a strategic arms limitation treaty that Ford and Brezhnev settled upon at their last meeting in November near Vladivostok on the USSR's Pacific coast.

Brezhnev sees hope for further detente

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev said today that accords reached at the supersummit here should be followed by a "further development of military detente" in central Europe.

But the Soviet Communist party chief told President Ford and 33 other government heads in the second day of the European Security Conference that his country would not tolerate interference in its internal affairs.

Brezhnev said the major conclusion reflected in the conference's final document is that "no one should try to dictate to other peoples, on the basis of foreign policy considerations of one kind or another, the manner in which they ought to manage their internal affairs."

"It is only the people of each given state, and no one else, that has the sovereign right to resolve its internal affairs and establish its internal laws," he said.

This was apparently directed at American congressional leaders who have sought to link East-West detente to an easing of Soviet emigration policies, particularly for Soviet Jews.

Brezhnev stressed a reduction of military hardware as a means of preventing further conflicts.

He said that a "priority goal" in the search for peace on the European continent "is to find ways to reduce armed forces and armament in central Europe without diminishing the security of anyone — on the contrary, to the benefit of all."

The Soviet leader said the "aggregate result" of the supersummit "is that international detente is being increasingly invested with concrete material content."

"Uppermost in our mind is the task of ending the arms race and achieving tangible results in disarmament," Brezhnev declared.

When Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus was to address the conference, the Turkish delegation led by Premier Suleyman Demirel walked out of the conference hall.

Turkey contends that President Makarios does not represent the Turkish Cypriot population on the Mediterranean island.

President Ford speaks on Friday, the day the summit ends with the signing of an already agreed-on document setting forth general principles for peaceful relations in Europe.

Speculation about Brezhnev's health cropped up again when he made an early exit Wednesday night from a state dinner for the 35 European and North American leaders.

day night from a state dinner for the 35 European and North American leaders.

But the 68-year-old Soviet leader looked fit today as he stepped briskly out of his Zil limousine at the entrance to Finlandia Hall just north of downtown Helsinki. He shook hands with a Finnish official and strode into the hall flanked by a phalanx of bodyguards.

In Wednesday's opening speeches, Communist leaders lavished praise on the conference, regarded as a major victory for Brezhnev's diplomacy and the policy of East-West detente.

Hope to enact ban on high-tar cigarettes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is trying again to win congressional approval to ban the manufacture and sale of cigarettes with high tar and nicotine content.

On the heels of this announcement Wednesday by Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, a House tobacco subcommittee chairman vowed to resist all such efforts.

Weinberger, in submitting the government's ninth report on smoking and health to Congress, urged the ban. But congressional action is necessary to grant this power to any government agency.

The HEW report referred to new scientific research that said again that cigarette smoking is a serious health problem. "It's toll in illness and premature death is needless and preventable," Weinberger said in a letter accompanying the report.

But Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the House

Agriculture tobacco subcommittee said that the request pointed up renewed efforts by the federal government to "interfere in the private lives of American citizens who enjoy smoking and who should have a choice of brands."

Jones said that Weinberger was fostering "another government attempt to regulate the lives of American citizens, of which we have had too much in recent years."

A trade industry group, the Tobacco Institute, criticized test results used to partially support HEW's conclusions.

A spokesman, commenting about quantities of carbon monoxide found in test rooms where smoking had occurred said the same results cannot be obtained except under laboratory conditions.

There have been at least two attempts this decade to ban cigarettes with high levels of tar and nicotine.

One was by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, in 1972, who held hearings but was unable to have a bill reported out of the Senate Commerce Committee that would have authorized a ban.

A federal court eventually ruled that the commission did have such authority but by that time tobacco interests had succeeded in amending the law.

Sentenced for forgery

Paula Ryan was ordered this morning by Circuit Judge Thomas E. Hornsby to serve a sentence of from one to three years in the state department of corrections.

Ryan had pleaded guilty to several forgery charges. At her sentencing Ryan said, "I realize that what I did was wrong. I have to pay for what I did," she added.

In ordering the sentence, Judge Hornsby felt that from Ryan's numerous forgeries she would possibly try it again. Hornsby stated that Ryan was in need of correctional treatment and that imprisonment would serve the best interests of both Ryan and society.

Tax cuts for corporations and stockholders asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declaring that the nation's industry has grown rusty and needs help, the Ford administration asked Congress today to cut taxes for corporations and stockholders by nearly $14 billion over a six-year period.

"This is not a program for big business. It is a program to benefit all savers," Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said in presenting the tax plan to the House Ways and Means Committee.

Simon also urged the Congress to help develop a program to encourage new savings by all Americans by offering special tax incentives, and he urged that the 1974 Individual Retirement Accounts legislation be broadened.

The major part of the program outlined by Simon was a reduction in corporate and stockholder taxes, by a phased-out elimination of what is regarded as a double tax on dividends.

At present, corporations pay taxes on profits and if any dividends are paid to stockholders, then stockholders face additional tax liability on the dividends they receive.

Simon offered few details of his suggestion for a new savings program for individual investors. But he said contributions, or new savings, could be tax-deductible up to some maximum amount and with interest income free from any tax liability.

He recommended expansion of the Individual Retirement Accounts plan, which provides tax incentives to set up retirement plans for persons not now covered by employer-sponsored retirement plans.

He urged that the plan also be available to persons covered by a regular retirement plan that offers lower benefits. Participation in the IRA, for these persons, could raise their potential benefits to the IRA limit.

Contributions to IRA now are limited to $1,500 per year, and Simon recommended increasing this limit, although he didn't recommend an amount.

Simon acknowledged to newsmen that because of political considerations, a tax cut for business might have to be coupled with tax reductions for individuals, possibly by extending the $12 billion in personal income taxes for 1975 into next year.

He also said Wednesday that extension of the 1975 individual tax cut would be considered by the administration as one option to offset increases in energy prices next year.

Simon and key members of the Ford administration, along with Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, have been laying the groundwork for a business tax-cut plan for business for months. They have argued that corporate profits in recent years have been insufficient to justify new job-creating investments.

Simon has described the situation as a "profits depression."

Soviet offer to Turkey

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians are reported offering helicopters to Turkey in what could be the beginning of a Soviet effort to replace the United States as Turkey's source for military equipment.

U.S. intelligence sources say Soviet representatives are preparing to demonstrate helicopters in Turkey within the next several months. These reports mention the turbine-powered Mi8 Hip helicopter which the Russians use for troop transport and recently have adapted with weapons for ground attack.

Turkish forces now are about 95 per cent U.S.-equipped.

Early this month, Russia and Turkey signed an economic pact which intelligence specialists estimate will be worth about $600 million to $700 million to the Turks.

Joan Little attorneys seek alternate theories

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for Joan Little are seeking alternative theories to explain the death of the jailer found slain last Aug. 27 in the cell from which the young black woman had fled.

Defense attorney Jerry Paul brought up the possibility of suffocation Wednesday in questioning the Greenville, N.C., pathologist who performed the autopsy on Clarence Alligood, 62.

Dr. Charles Gilbert testified that he believed the cause of death to be excessive internal bleeding around the heart caused by a stab wound inflicted in the left ventricle with an ice pick. He said Alligood's body showed 11 stab wounds.

During cross-examination, Paul asked, "Is it possible that he could have died of suffocation before that wound would have killed him?"

Gilbert conceded, "It is possible."

He said he had no indication that the jailer was smothered, but said his tests would not necessarily have shown such evidence.

Gilbert said Alligood could have lived between two and nine minutes after the stab wound in the left side of the heart was inflicted. He said if the jailer lived as long as nine minutes, it would have been possible to smother him before the stab wound caused death.

The defense is seeking to raise doubt about the state's case by offering alternate theories to suggest that someone else was responsible for the jailer's death after Miss Little left the jail.

Miss Little, 21, says Alligood was trying to rape her and that she stabbed him in self defense. She said, however, that she did not mean to kill him and did not know he was dying when she fled the Beaufort County jail in Washington, N.C.

The state contends Miss Little killed the white jailer to escape.

Defense attorneys said Wednesday that Miss Little may take the stand in her own defense, although no firm decision has been made.

Marvin Miller, one of six defense attorneys, said the nature of the state's case will determine whether Miss Little will testify. He added, "The inclination is that she will go on the stand."

Gilbert also testified that he found seminal fluid containing spermatozoa in Alligood's urethra. He said that indicated to him that ejaculation had occurred just prior to death.

Gilbert said he had heard that ejaculation sometimes occurs at the time of a traumatic death, but said he had never observed the phenomenon or read of it.

School Board to get report

A report listing proposed renovations at the Dixon High School athletic field was expected to be submitted to the Dixon School Board at its Aug. 20 meeting. The action came as a result of a meeting Wednesday night between the Athletic Field Renovation Committee, Booster Club members and other school officials.

According to James Dixon, board president and chairman of the renovation committee, the proposal will include crowning of the present football field, new lighting and a new track. Estimated cost for completion of the work over a three-year period was set at between $120,000 and $150,000, Dixon said.

Most Jews have deserted Arab countries for Israel

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing is over the barrel on the Israel issue. On one hand he sponsored France's multibillion-dollar arms sales to Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, etc. On the other hand d'Estaing faces within France the largest Jewish community in all Western Europe.

A full 535,000 Jews live in France, nearly a quarter of the number who live in Israel. Moreover, France has a great many prominent Jews — Rothschilds, Ferriers, Blums, etc. — who are intensely pro-Israel. And when Morocco was a French protectorate, an astounding 300,000 Jews lived in Morocco. It was the largest Jewish community in the Arab world.

The combination of 535,000 Jews in France and just the 300,000 Arab Jews in Morocco alone totaled 835,000. Accordingly, this strong Jewish presence gave much French political and other protection.

However, so many Moroccan Jews have left, chiefly for Israel, that Morocco's Jewish population has dwindled to 30,000. The exodus was prompted by the bloody July 20, 1971, attempt on King Hassan's life at his Skirit Palace on the seashore near Rabat. On that afternoon many Jews in Casablanca, Fez, Marrakesh and Meknes found tracts in their mailboxes warning them their time would come, and in Tangier places called Jew Beach, Jew River, etc., saw anti-Jewish riots.

Of Morocco's remaining 30,000 Jews, two-thirds live in the single city of Casablanca. When I was there even the Jewish schools were closing for lack of children.

On the day the Balfour Declaration was announced in 1917, Palestine had only 56,000 Jews. At the end of World War II in 1945, 28 years later, Palestine's population was still only eight per cent Jewish. Ninety-two per cent were Arab. The United States recognized Israel May 14, 1948; literally overnight and the first nation in the world to do so. On that day Israel's population was 35 per cent Jewish, 65 per cent Arab.

But, paralleling the Moroccan exodus, Egyptian President Gamel Abdel Nasser frightened out most Jews. Only since the advent of President Anwar el-Sadat, the Arab world's most moderate leader and distinctly not anti-Jew, have they been reassured.

Revolutionary President Houari Boumediene frightened most Jews out of Algeria. So did Libyan wildman Muammar el-Qaddafi and Maj. Gen. Gaafar al-Nimeiry when he took over in the Sudan.

Turkey had 200,000 Jews. Only 20,000 remain. About 180,000 have gone to Israel. Iraq had 120,000 Jews in postwar 1946; today less than 400. All but 6,000 have left Lebanon. They cannot hold public office or government jobs and are mostly small shopkeepers.

Less than 10,000 Jews now remain in Moslem countries most closely involved with the Israel conflicts. In Egypt, Lebanon, Libya and Syria alone there are 308,000 fewer Jews than 30 years ago.

Overwhelmingly they have gone to Israel. A full 90 per cent of this influx of Oriental, or so-called Arab Jews (Sephardic Oriental Jews) are from North African countries. And today they actually outnumber the European Jews in Israel.

This is a little known fact, but immensely significant.

At the same time there is a largely unreported "driftback" to Europe of young European Jews with special talents and training, particularly to France — something of a "brain drain" out of Israel to Europe.

In Israel, the Arab Jews are called Sephardim, the European Jews the Ashkenazim. And the Sephardim are now militantly protesting what they claim is a monopoly over political power by the Eastern European and other European Jews, now fallen into the minority.

The Israel Knesset (Parliament) has 120 members. There are only 18 Sephardim. They hold only about three per cent of the top-layer civil-service positions. About 90 per cent of Israel's important government, military and industrial positions are held by Ashkenazim.

Sephardim comprise 67 per cent of Israel's primary school enrollment, but only four per cent of the university graduates. And the Sephardim insist there is a caste-class social order in Israel which makes them future-starved, second-class citizens.

This population is growing highly explosive. You hear the borrowed Yiddish word "gazunting," meaning to swindle someone. French President d'Estaing is left with his Jewish problem inside France by any cooperation with the Arab world and the problem of the transposed Arab Jews in Israel itself.

Gun control: Threat to freedom

By EDWARD M. DAVIS
(Chief of Police, Los Angeles, Calif.)

Our government was sired in a revolution which began April 19, 1775, when a British expedition marched on Concord in an effort to seize colonial arms... it was actually the issue of gun control that started the American Revolution! Today we still hear the voices of those who desire to limit our rights and instill government control over our lives. And one of our basic liberties that seems to raise serious conflict with some critics is the Second Amendment to our Constitution.

Before our Revolution, the English had enjoyed a Bill of Rights since 1689. It gave the people the right, among various provisions, to keep and bear arms. And many of the American colonies had adopted this English right in their own charters and laws; our founding fathers feared, at the Constitutional Convention in 1787, that the new government's standing army, like the British regulars, might invade the states and keep the people under martial law. They were concerned about giving to the new government the absolute power of the sword as well as the purse.

Let's look at the second provision of the Bill of Rights. It reads: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

Now let's tear this amendment apart and try to define it. The first part says, "A well regulated militia..." Does this mean an army or a national guard? When you read the debates of the times, the answer is definitely "No"! The framers of this provision believed that standing armies were a threat to peace and liberty. The militia, according to the framers of the Constitution, and this is supported by dictionaries of the era, was individual free men who would leave their usual occupations to fight for their town or state or country. In the words of Patrick Henry, "What is the militia? The militia is every person, it's every farmer, it's every merchant, every printer, whomever it happens to be."

The next part of the amendment says, "...being necessary to the security of a free state..." In other words, the amendment was designed to protect the people against the tyranny of central government, and against invasion both from within and from outside the country.

The final part of this amendment states, "...the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." According to Webster's Dictionary, the word "infringe" means to "defeat, frustrate; violate, or transgress." That statement very clearly sums up the intent of our forefathers in developing this amendment. It simply means that government cannot take this right from the people!

This historical fact has special significance: members of the House of Representatives at our first Congress were asked, after debating the amendments, to arrange them in proper order. The Bill of Rights starts with freedom of speech, religion, press and assembly; and it concludes with an admonition prohibiting the government from taking away powers not expressly granted by the Constitution. It is important to note that the right to keep and bear arms was placed second after the rights of free speech and religion!

Is this right any less important today? I think not! Remember, for example, the plight of the British during World War II. They were threatened with invasion by the German army. If the British citizens had been totally unarmed during an invasion, they would have had to submit to the Nazis. In June 1940 the British people, undaunted by Germany's air attacks, grimly asked their government to put arms in their hands so that they might meet their invaders on the beaches in hand-to-hand combat!

America has about five per cent of the world's population... and about fifty per cent of the world's wealth. Obviously, the other ninety-five per cent of the world could pose a threat to us. And remember, the people who advocate gun control are the same people who advocate cutting the budget of our Department of Defense!

Now let's look at the threat from within. During the early days in America, there was a constant threat from powerful Indian tribes. This danger lasted until less than a century ago... and things haven't really changed! Instead of fighting Indians, we are fighting modern hoodlums. They are terrorizing our communities. Crime increased nationally by seventeen per cent in 1974—the largest increase in American history. It is noteworthy that crime was up six per cent in the major cities, about nineteen per cent in the suburbs... and twenty-five per cent in towns under 25,000! The escalation reaches into every corner of America.

There are so many criminals today that no police department can protect you completely. Assured protection would require ten times as many policemen. Costs would be prohibitive. If law enforcement cannot insure your protection, and that of your family, it becomes your own responsibility.

What is the thinking of those who would compromise our liberties? They cite the misuse of guns as a reason for their abolition, pointing out that a certain percentage of all robberies, murders and assaults are accomplished with firearms. What they overlook is the fact that only a very small percentage of people are involved. Is it fair to penalize ninety-nine-plus per cent of the people in an effort to control less than one per cent? Would it be effective? No! Tim Sullivan gave New York one of the strictest gun laws in this country, and it has done little to help New York. Criminals still use guns in New York; in fact, its crime rate is very high. When a criminal decides to violate one law, like robbery, the violation of another law becomes a very small thing. A criminal has his own rules, so gun laws, like those in New York, restrict the law-abiding citizen and not the criminal.

Alan S. Krug, a prominent university economist, made a comparison study between jurisdictions with strong gun laws and those with lenient laws. He found that firearms were involved in only three per cent of all crimes... and that, while the number of guns purchased by citizens has increased significantly since 1965, the number of deaths from firearms, per 100,000 population, has remained fairly constant. The availability of arms to the general public is not the cause of abuse... this is a false and emotional argument used as an excuse for infringing upon our rights.

The answer to gun abuse lies not in abolishing the right of the majority, but in protecting that majority against the few. This end should be achieved by an effective criminal justice system under existing law. Proper administration of penalties against those who abuse this right would act as a proper deterrent!

Those who would abolish our Second Amendment rights should seriously consider their future positions on relinquishment of other Constitutional guarantees. For to abandon one liberty may lead to the surrender of others. Certainly the value of these liberties is no less today than it was at the time of our founding. We must let our Bicentennial mark an increased awareness of our inalienable rights and a return to deep reverence for the law and its principles and for our rights, liberties and obligations!

Love is skin-deep. Give Blood.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

A new police teletype machine was recently installed at the Dixon Police Headquarters. The system allows the local law enforcement agencies to have instant police communications with almost all parts of the state and the nation.

Operating appropriations for the 1965-67 biennium at Dixon State School have recently been published in Springfield. A total of $19,854,106 has been appropriated, a 31 per cent jump over the previous budget.

50 YEARS AGO

The first real rain in a month brought relief to dry pastures and thirsty potatoes and corn Thursday afternoon. The rain was worth millions of dollars to crops of this section, farmers declare.

Dixon milk consumers woke up today to find a little surprise note with the morning's bottle of milk. An increase of one cent per quart is going into effect. The new price will now be eleven cents per quart.

Voice of the people

I have read with much interest in the past most of Mr. Ben T. Shaw's comments on the editorial page of the Dixon Evening Telegraph because in the main I agreed with him.

The article "Voting Franchise" in Friday's Telegraph, however, makes me wonder if, he, like so many others around the nation isn't a bit off base on some of the more important issues of the day. I shall try to elaborate on my reactions to this article point by point.

Firstly — voters do not exercise any right to govern others. Voters hope that with their vote they will see in office honest, able men and women who have the intelligence to sort out priorities in the lives of all the people and to act on them in the best interests of the majority and the best interests of the nation. I can say, however, that in recent years the voter apathy has done more harm than all the street marchers put together.

Secondly — most voters are able and willing to support themselves but what of those in ghettos, the poor whites, the veterans who are trying, at taxpayers expense, to better themselves through further education, the elderly on social security, the thousands of sick in both civilian and veterans hospitals and most of all, the real American, the American Indian? These people out of work and with families should not have to kiss anyone... for the right, under the constitution, to vote or be denied that right just because they are sick, hungry, in school and unemployed.

If only the right to vote were given to those few who are fortunate enough to be able to have an income on which they can pay taxes then we would see more of the likes of Percy, Rockefeller, Ford and Teddy running things than we do now. I look at this point in Mr Shaw's article in another way too. If 90 per cent of taxes paid are in the bracket between $5000.00 and $30,000 then the right to vote must also be denied to those over the $30,000 bracket for they pay little if any tax and many, none at all. See the logic of those trapped in the bigotry of our society being denied the right to vote simply because they are not able to pay taxes on nothing? It works both ways.

Thirdly — just be those in need relinquishing their "relief", in order to vote would certainly not mean a strengthening of the nation's "moral" character and in no way would it place us in a better position to handle internal and foreign problems. For by not taking care of our own, as we are now not doing, while at the same time creating shortages and higher prices by trying to take care of the rest of the world is one of the weakest points in our entire beurocratic society.

Fourth — it may be called the "Federal Reserve" but it is a private banking institution or monopoly. The government can squeeze it but can't control it. Don't let the name "Federal" fool you.

Fifth — yes, the constitution does say "The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes and duties, etc., in order to pay government debts. All duties, taxes, etc... shall be uniform throughout the United States". I do not believe government debts should include $230,000,000 to go up in space to shake hands with the Russians — or the self voted pay raises annually or the self voted fringe benefits of any politician or the cost of their campaigns or their family world tours, or the mating habits of toads. Show me one instance where taxes are "uniform throughout the United States". The rich get richer and the poor get poorer. Check with your neighbor on the uniformity of your taxes.

Sixth — it is very constitutional to promote the welfare of one group or several groups at the expense of another — in this case the rich who pay no taxes thereby causing unemployment and hardship to one or more other groups. By rich I mean, also, the huge corporations, syndicates and combines.

I agree that there should be better watchdogging of those applying for welfare as well as those operating the welfare offices. Many of them are found wanting and have no right being in such an office. There are many in this town who know what I mean by that statement from experiences in the welfare offices — being denied without cause by one who knows from nothing.

Canners, frustrated by lid shortage, turn to freezing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Consumers stumped by the current shortage of canning jar lids are finding there's more than one way to preserve their home-grown fruits and vegetables.

Freezing is one of the most popular alternatives, partly because of the wide variety of containers that can be used. The canning lid shortage has spread across the country. Manufacturers and some government officials say consumers are hoarding. There also have been charges that lids simply aren't getting to retailers and the Federal Trade Commission has launched an investigation.

Industry spokesmen estimate 1975 production of replacement lids at 1.6 billion. That would be about five dozen lids for each of the 25 million or 26 million families expected to do some home canning this year.

Consumers, however, say they can't find lids at their grocers and are trying to salvage produce with other preserving techniques.

There are two basic types of packages for home freezing: rigid containers made of aluminum, glass, plastic, tin or heavily waxed cardboard and non-rigid containers like bags and sheets of cellophane, heavy aluminum foil, polyfilm and polyethylene.

The packages should be moisture and vapor resistant and must be sealed carefully. Tin cans require a sealing machine or special lids; glass jars for freezing generally call for the same kind of currently scarce lids used for home canning.

Most bags used for packaging can be heat sealed — using special equipment or a household iron — or closed by twisting and folding back the top of the bag and securing it with a string, a plastic or rubber band or other tie device.

The Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture has several tips on packing produce for freezing.

—Pack food and syrup cold to speed up freezing and help keep natural color and flavor.

—Pack tightly to cut down the amount of air between individual pieces of produce. When using a bag, press the air out of the unfilled part of the bag and seal immediately.

—Allow a little head space between the packed food and the closing. Most food expands as it freezes. The amount of space needed varies with the amount and type of food.

Freeze all fruits and vegetables at zero degrees Fahrenheit or below and don't overload the freezer. Leave a little space between packages when freezing, so air can circulate. You can move the packages closer together later on.

Most fruits and vegetables can be kept for 8 to 12 months at zero degrees or below, according to the USDA. Citrus fruits and juices can be kept for four to six months.

Reminder: not all produce items can be frozen. Green onions, lettuce and other salad greens and radishes will not freeze well. Neither will tomatoes unless they are cooked first. For further information on local varieties of produce suitable for freezing, write your state agricultural extension service, experiment station or college of agriculture.

Fruits and vegetables require different preparations for freezing. Fruits can be packed unsweetened, in sugar or in syrup. Unsweetened fruits generally do not keep as well as those with the sugar or syrup, but may be preferable for use in cooking or in special diets.

Wash, peel, trim, pit and slice the fruit the way you would if you were serving it immediately.

If you're using syrup, dissolve the required amount of sugar in cold or hot water, then pack the fruit in the liquid. Make sure the syrup is cool before packing and make sure it covers the fruit so the top pieces will not change color and flavor.

If you're using a sugar pack, put the cut fruit in a bowl or pan, sprinkle the required amount of sugar over the fruit and mix gently until the juice is drawn out of the fruit and the sugar is dissolved. Put the fruit and juice in containers and seal.

Unsweetened fruit can be packed just as is or crushed and packed in its own juice, without sugar.

Vegetables also should be washed, peeled and trimmed. They also should be heated or blanched to stop the action of enzymes in the vegetables.

The best way to heat most vegetables is in boiling water. Use a special blancher or fit a wire basket into a large kettle and add the cover.

Use at least one gallon of boiling water for each pound of prepared vegetables. Put the vegetables in the wire basket or blanching basket and lower into the boiling water. Start timing immediately.

After heating, plunge the basket of vegetables into cold water to stop the cooking. It takes about as long to cool a vegetable as it did to heat it.

Once cooled, pack immediately and freeze.

Rochelle ambulance bid to Sterling firm

ROCHELLE— A city-operated ambulance service should be getting underway soon after a new ambulance is delivered next week. Rochelle's city council accepted a bid of $19,815 for a 1975 ambulance from Foster Motor Sales, Sterling, at its meeting Wednesday night. A long debate over whether the city or a private firm should operate the ambulance service was decided only recently, with the council giving the nod to the city's fire department. Fire chief William Lower says the new ambulance has complete communications equipment, as well as $300 worth of special equipment that exceeds required specifications, but that will be useful to the service. The new system is scheduled to begin operations sometime before Sept. 1. In a related discussion, the council discussed billing rates for future ambulance calls, particularly the question of whether or not to charge for city calls. No conclusion was reached at the meeting.

Walker-Hartigan feud gets hotter

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The feud between the two top Democrats in Illinois government, which began the day they were elected, is expanding to Hatfield-and-McCoy proportions.

The only difference is that verbal darts are being used instead of real bullets. So nobody actually gets hurt. In fact, both sides may benefit politically by he seemingly endless acrimony between Gov. Daniel Walker and Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan.

In the latest round of sniping, which arose in the aftermath of the tornado that hit the Fulton County community of Canton last week, Walker aide William I. Goldberg accused Hartigan of "exploiting human misery."

Hartigan replied at a news conference Wednesday that the governor's office was guilty of a "disgraceful distortion, a manufactured controversy, a double-barreled lie designed to slander me personally."

The lieutenant governor acted in the relief efforts because Walker was, as he still is, on vacation in Florida. Local officials called Hartigan in the governor's absence in a bid to activate the National Guard to stem looting and in hope of hastening state and federal aid.

Goldberg accused Hartigan at a Tuesday news conference of "trying to get into the act."

"The lieutenant governor's actions were nothing but a blatant and unconstitutional attempt at interference with the lawful chain of command," Goldberg, counsel to the governor, said. "He did nothing but add extra work and an element of confusion."

Hartigan says he would be unworthy of his office if he had not responded with help to the frantic telephone call he received from Canton Mayor Robert Jennings, whose city was devastated, hit by power failures and beset by looters.

Apart from the disaster that befell Canton, which left two women dead, the verbal cross-fire that broke the midsummer political lull assumed a familiar tone. Hartigan, a follower of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, and Walker, Daley's chief antagonist, have been fighting a public relations battle for three years.

It started the day after they were elected. Walker said Hartigan should quit his post as 49th Ward Democratic committeeman in Chicago. The new governor then barred Hartigan from cabinet meetings and refused to give him office space in his suite in the Capitol.

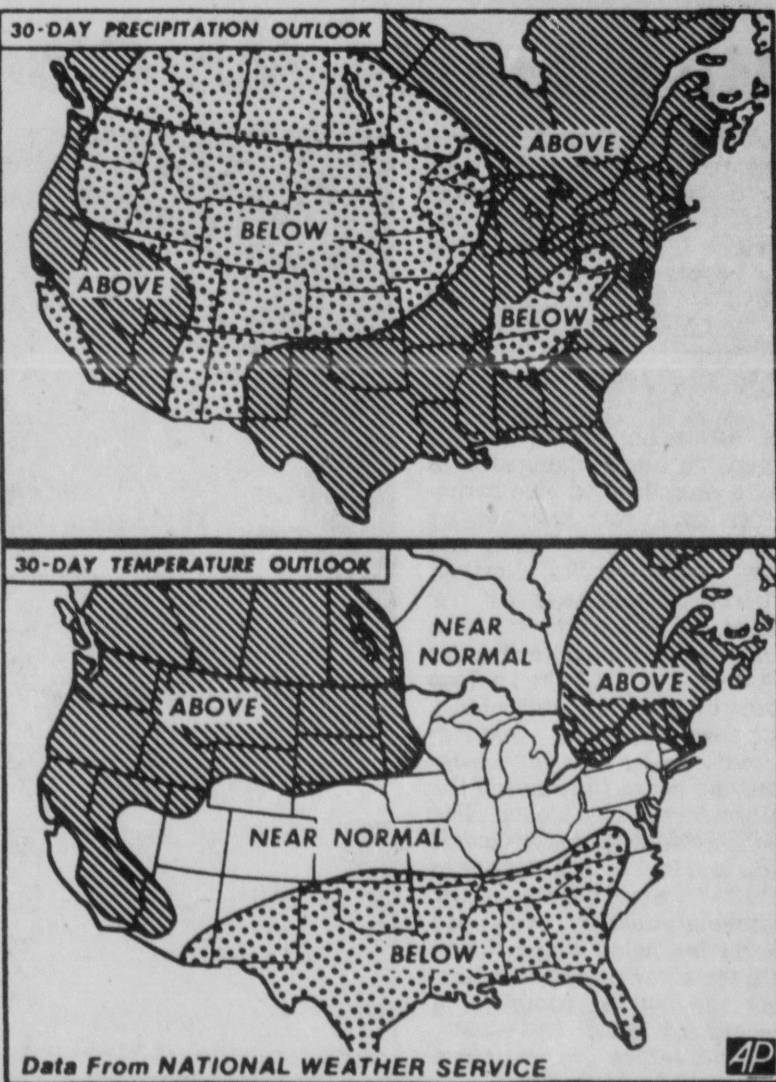

Hartigan replied by working against Walker in the legislature and trying to wrest from him control of the patronage-rich Illinois State Fair.

And yet Walker and Hartigan may believe they are reaping a healthy profit from the din of charges and accusations.

"Walker gets to attack that big, bad political machine in Chicago without attacking the mayor personally," a Republican committeeman said Wednesday in Chicago, reflecting a view held by various students of state politics. "He looks like a knight on a white horse."

Meanwhile, the 37-year-old Hartigan, who is ambitious but holds a thoroughly powerless office, receives, according to this view, an opportunity to duel in the publicity limelight that he never could get if he were an ally of the governor.

Free blood pressure screening here Aug. 8

The Lee County Heart Association will conduct a free blood-pressure screening for the public Aug. 8 at First Federal Savings and Loan in Dixon.

The hours of the screening will be 1 to 4:30 p.m. In announcing plans for the screening, Mrs. Harry Miller, community service chairman for the local heart unit, stressed that a blood-pressure check is completely painless and takes only a few minutes.

"Uncontrolled high blood pressure," the Heart Association says, "is a major contributing factor leading to heart attack and stroke. When high blood pressure is brought under control through the care of a physician, however, the risk of either of these conditions drops significantly. And chances are excellent that medication, diet changes or other regimens prescribed by a physician can bring high blood pressure down."

Said Mrs. Miller, "I encourage the public to take advantage of the screening and to see their physician if so advised. There should be no alarm at any time as a result of the screening as blood pressure can vary. The nurses at the screening will not make diagnoses. If a person's blood pressure appears high he will, with his permission, be referred back to his own doctor for further examination and possible treatment. The greatest danger with high blood pressure is in not knowing."

Conservation Department reorganization outlined

SPRINGFIELD — Reorganization of the Conservation Department, to regionalize services and centralize land management responsibilities, is nearly complete, according to Director Tony Dean.

"The reorganization-regionalization project I announced last year is all but complete," Dean said. "I expect all regional offices to be operational by Sept. 1."

Dean said benefits of the move are three-fold:

—Services will be improved by locating foresters, wildlife and fish biologists, land managers and conservation police together at regional locations where they are easily accessible to the public.

—Planning and management will be done by the regional specialists with a minimum of input from Springfield. For the first time, an integrated management system for natural resources will be practiced on a comprehensive regional basis.

—Management of about 280,000 acres formerly controlled by various divisions of the Department will be centralized in the new Public Lands Division of the Public Lands and Historic Sites Branch of the department. The latter is comprised of the old Parks and Memorials Division and is one of four major management groups forming the new department organization structure. The others are: Acquisition and Development, Natural Resources, and Administration and Management.

Dean said Charles Tamminga has been named associate director to head up the Public Lands and Historic Sites Branch. Tamminga has been in charge of the Program Services Section of the Division of Parks and Memorials for the past three years. Ray Norbut, former acting superintendent of Parks and Memorials, will head up the Public Lands Division, and John Patterson has been named in charge of the Division of Historic Sites and Program Services.

Jerry Van Meter, former chief of Planning and Development, has been appointed associate director in charge of the Acquisition and Development Branch, and Sandy Martin is associate director in charge of Administration and Management, Dean said. The position of associate director for Natural Resources is vacant.

As part of reorganization, Dean said all Department sites are being reclassified by major function — recreation area, natural area, historic area, etc.

He also said that eventually most Department sites will be given "place" names rather than names of people.

Bicentennial idea

Proposes human chain of Americans across country

CHICAGO (AP) — Attorney Marvin J. Rosenblum has a "monumental" plan for citizen involvement and unifying the United States on its 200th birthday celebration next July 4: A human chain holding hands from sea to sea.

"I was just sitting there at dinner one Friday evening and I jumped up and said, 'Gina (his wife), I think I've got the most monumental bicentennial idea anyone's ever heard,'" he says.

"Nothing like this has ever been attempted or done by any country..." Rosenblum says of the "Hands Across the Nation" concept. He sees it as a "national Woodstock," "a Mt. Rushmore of American emotion," "a 'Great Wall of People' comparable to the Great Wall of China, with millions of Americans of all ages, classes, races and types strung across 3,000 miles for a moment, clasping hands."

"You have to absorb it," he conceded in a recent interview, suggesting that when the idea first occurred to him, "I thought it was hair-brained."

Rosenblum figures such a chain would take about 4 million persons, or roughly 2 percent of the nation's population, at 1,320 persons per mile, each standing 4 feet apart. There are 5,280 feet in a mile.

Selecting a route and circumventing natural barriers such as the Rocky Mountains, deserts and great bodies of water, would be formidable, he says. And he admits that organizing the chain on state, county and local levels could be "an incredible organizational problem."

But he maintains it can be accomplished. "It's the grass roots kind of thing. From bicentennial hot dogs...to bicentennial toilet paper...even including the freedom train, as far as I know this is the only thing the people can really get involved in."

"I think the logistical problems are really the most difficult part. If you can find 400,000 or people to go to Woodstock (in upstate New York, site of a massive rock music festival in 1969) I think you can find 10 times or 20 times that number...this would be appealing to a much broader level" of the population.

"It would go down in history not only as a unique bicentennial celebration but probably would last for hundreds of years afterwards as a mark of the human will. It would show that we're still not so large that we can't be linked together at one moment..."

Rosenblum, 32, bounced the idea off some of the nation's largest corporations, the Bicentennial Committee, the White House and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

The idea rebounded. The committee wasn't interested. Neither were the corporations.

The White House said it would pass the idea to the Bicentennial Committee. Kennedy, says Rosenblum, did not respond.

He soon realized, he says, that "It's a people's thing and...can only be accomplished on a grass roots-type basis" involving such organizations as the Scouts, Rotary, Lions and other civic clubs, and school, church and union organizations.

Planning a route, which would have to go through heavily populated areas, would require geographers and demographers, he added. "The chain would almost have to pass through certain states."

Rosenblum has found support from WBBM radio newsman Sherman Kaplan in Chicago, who interviewed him and has been plugging the idea for several days, urging written support.

Says Rosenblum, "I think the people would be psychically and physically united...I get the feeling from some that it's a dumb idea; and then from others, for the most part, my friends...some people have this great burst of enthusiasm. Others are noncommittal, then they call back and say, my God, I think that can work."

Miss Boehle, Mr. O'Brien wed

St. Patrick's Catholic Church was the setting for the marriage ceremony that united Miss Colleen C. Boehle and Ronald J. O'Brien. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd F. Boehle, Dixon, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. O'Brien, Dixon.

The Rev. James Molloy, pastor at St. Patrick's, conducted the afternoon nuptial service before an altar arranged with white gladiolas and blue carnations. Music was provided by John Stanley Smith, Dixon, and Miss Adelle Castillo, Sterling.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's gown was a princess line silhouette of sheer organza. The bodice had a deep yoke of schiffie embroidery with seed pearl trim. A self ruffle outlined the yoke, high neckline, and formed the cuff of the embroidered long sleeve. Her skirt flowed to a Cathedral train and had a deep flounce of schiffie embroidery. Her matching Juliet cap with seed pearl trim, held a fingertip veil with the same edging. The bouquet she carried combined a cascade of white carnations, yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath, and stephanotis.

Mrs. Raymond Paar served as her sister's matron of honor. Miss Amy Flynn was the bridesmaid. They were attired in blue nylon sheer gowns with multicolor pastel miniature daisies and dot print. White lace trimmed their rounded neckline and sleeves.

Their gowns were designed with a pinafore-type back and a flounce on the skirts. They wore white picture hats with blue ribbon and carried colonial bouquets of white daisies, blue carnations, and baby's breath.

David J. O'Brien, Glenview, Minn., served as his brother's best man. Charles J. O'Brien, Rock Falls, was his brother's groomsman. Guests were seated by Gene F. O'Brien, brother of the groom from Rochelle, and Daniel Haley, Harmon. Miss Dawn M. Boehle, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. Michael B. Paar, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception in honor of the couple followed at the VFW Hall. Music was provided by the "Blue Rainbow."

MR. AND MRS. RONALD O'BRIEN

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Ronald L. Boehle, Mrs. Leon F. Boehle, Mrs. David O'Brien, Mrs. Wesley Scheffler, Mrs. Russell Fritts, Mrs. Edward Sutter, Miss Kathi Boehle, and Mrs. David Haley.

The new Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien have been residing at Rt. 1, following their wedding

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our family accepts what you say as the "last word." We have faith in your common sense and judgment. We also know you go to great lengths to consult with the experts. This letter is to ask you to clear up something at once. Either you've been giving wrong information or someone is in serious trouble.

I clearly recall that in the last three years you have stated unequivocally that silicone injections to enlarge the breasts are illegal and dangerous. You stated recently that some women have had to have their breasts amputated because of tumors caused by these injections.

This morning I read a wire story which I am enclosing. I couldn't believe my eyes. It says the state of Wisconsin paid for silicone injections for an aspiring go-go dancer who "lacked the necessary equipment" to land a job. The dancer was listed as "disabled" until the silicone treatments enlarged her breasts. She is now gainfully employed.

What about this, Ann Landers?—Chicago Ann Fan

Dear Fan: Silicone injections ARE illegal. I strongly suspect there was an error in reporting the story. The "disabled" aspirant probably had silicone implants which are legal, safe and have proven satisfactory.

If the story was accurately reported, however, and the woman did have silicone injections, two people, at least, are in trouble—the go-go dancer and the physician who administered the shots.

Dear Ann Landers: Latest reports indicate that a total of $5,622.83 has been received—thanks to your simple suggestion that those who wish to help a good cause should send money to Dialogue. And it is still coming in—three months after the column appeared!

More important is the fact that this unexpected windfall saved the Braille edition we embossed for the deaf-blind. Finances were so low, we had just about decided to suspend publication of the Braille edition. This would have been a tragic loss, because those who cannot hear recordings or the radio and TV are more isolated and cut off from the world than the "ordinary" blind.

If our deaf-blind readers knew what your help meant to them in keeping the Braille edition alive, I'm sure each one would write you a note of thanks.

In behalf of all of us who have profited from your kindness, I send our warm thanks.—Sincerely, Don Nold

Dear Don: What a delightful day-brightener! And now—just in case anyone out there meant to get that address when it first appeared—and didn't—it's Dialogue, 3100 S. Oak Park Ave., Berwyn, Illinois 60402.

Dear Ann Landers: At the last count there were 17 churches in Los Angeles and the surrounding area whose membership is composed of homosexuals. This scares me to death. Are straight people going out of style? Please comment.—Mortified

Dear Mort: I'm more concerned about violence and street crime than I am with people who want to meet in peaceful assembly to worship—no matter what their sexual preference.

WHAT'S AFOOT? Summer fun often includes extra miles of hiking and walking, usually without proper shoes or socks. The results—blisters, callouses and tough dry skin. Clean broken blister areas with an antiseptic and protect from dirt until they heal. Soothe skin and soften callouses with petroleum jelly.

Miss Harrolle, Mr. Quinn wed

OREGON — Miss Nancy Harrolle became the wife of Darrell Quinn in a recent double ring ceremony at the Church of God. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Harrolle, Creston. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Quinn, Rochelle.

The Rev. Clarence Lapp performed the evening nuptial service before an altar arrangement of yellow and white majestic daisies and babies breath. Denny Schumacher was the soloist. He was accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Lapp on the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace over satin in an empire style, with a high sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves. The multitiered skirt of matching lace extended into a full Cathedral train. A fingertip veil of illusion was bordered with the matching lace. The bouquet she carried was a cascade of white Japhet orchids, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Janet Edds was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Carlen Quinn, sister of the groom, Brenda McKnight, Mt. Morris, and Karen Brown, cousin of the bride from Steward. Ceremonial flower girl was Miss Heidi Quinn, cousin of the groom.

They were attired in modern floor-length gowns of yellow silk organza over taffeta trimmed with embroidered lace. Their skirts were slightly gathered with a wide ruffles at the bottom and short puffed sleeves. They wore matching picture hats and carried nosegays of white pompons, yellow miniature daisies and baby's breath with ivy cascades.

Serving as his brother's best man was Marvin Quinn. Groomsmen were Don Quinn, cousin of the groom, Mark Lundine, cousin of the groom and Roger Schmidt, cousin of the groom. Darrell Gilbert, cousin of the groom, and Dale Harrolle, brother of the bride were ushers. Ringbearer was Joseph Jennings Jr., cousin of the bride.

A reception in honor of the

newlyweds was held in the church parlor following the wedding ceremony.

Since returning from a two week honeymoon in Disney World, the new Mr. and Mrs. Quinn have been residing in Rochelle.

They are 1971 graduates of Rochelle High School. Mrs. Quinn is employed at Continental Telephone, Rochelle. Mr. Quinn is a 1975 graduate from the University of Illinois and is currently employed at Eagle Supermarket.

When 4NT BID bid isn't Blackwood

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When you play Blackwood should you use all four-notrump bids as ace requests?

That is the simple way to play the convention. Later on you and your partners might want to play some four-notrump calls as strong bids in no-trump. Before doing so, make sure that you are incomplete agreement as to which bids aren't Blackwood. You can make this as complicated as you wish, but the best thing to do is to keep it simple.

Thus, as a starter agree that an immediate four notrump response to partner's opening bid of one, two or three notrump is a plain raise and does not ask for aces.

North's four notrump shows 15+ to 16 points. His plus was the three 10 spots. South jumps to six because he holds 17 points plus one 10 and two nines.

The slam makes easily when the jack of clubs drops on the second lead. If it failed to drop, South would have had to locate the queen of diamonds. 31 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

NAILING IT Broken and dirty nails and ragged cuticles detract from an otherwise neat appearance. Introduce your teen-age son or daughter to proper hand care. It will soon become a daily routine.

New approach to chores

Are you a young homemaker, a seasoned expert, or a new apartment dweller? Chances are you can profit from the efficiency-expert approach to household chores.

You can save time and money while keeping your home, car, boat or what-have-you clean and attractive.

Make a list of non-routine chores, the "spectaculars" like shampooing a rug, washing walls or removing built-up wax from the kitchen floor. Then do them, say, one per month. You'll be surprised how much easier it is when you attack them one at a time instead of all at once.

That goes for spring cleaning too — an old-fashioned upheaval that today's executive homemaker happily can omit. Instead, spread your cleaning "energy" throughout the year.

HIDE GRAY A New York hairstylist darkens strands of gray, four or five hairs at a time, to reduce the amount of gray in a hairdo. He says such slight streaking of hair avoids the artificial look of large stripes of color.

Beautiful you

By MARTI ROBINSON
BEAUTY DOESN'T HAVE AN AGE. I know an attractive 42-year-old woman who readily reveals her age. When someone recently said to her, "You look much younger than that," she replied pleasantly. No, I don't look younger. This is what 42 looks like.

Bless her! Someone 10 years from now will probably say she looks much younger than 52, and her reply will be similar. Her message is: "This is my age, and why are you so surprised I still look attractive?"

You can, of course, be beautiful at all ages. True, make-up must be applied more skillfully when you're older, so it will emphasize good points and minimize bad ones; a skillful cosmetics studio can give you a lesson in this useful art.

You'll want to pay special attention to skin care, choosing the correct foundations, moisturizers and hand creams in addition to lipsticks and blushers. It helps to understand what's going on in the aging process, so you're in a better position to choose the right beautifying regimen. Aging skin tends to get drier, so it's important that you concentrate on moisturizing not just the face but the entire body.

Softer colors are more flattering to the mature complexion. Choose a lip color like the new Melody Pink or a coral shade, rather than shades with blue or yellow undertones that might be too harsh. You'll want a lip make-up that gives your mouth a lustrous look and a feeling of moistness. If your lips have become thinner, still follow close to the natural line. Extending the natural line does not achieve a prettier look, and it tends to look careless if you've developed fine lines around the mouth.

Hair grooming is especially important. On mature women, short hair styles usually are the most attractive and flattering. Luckily, they're in style this year! All hair colors fade as we grow older, and sooner or later hair may turn to grey. If you decide to color your hair, choose a shade that's somewhat lighter than what your natural hair color used to be. This goes for brunettes as well as blondes. A lighter hair shade is more complimentary to your complexion, which tends to become somewhat sallow with age.

As for your eyes, again choose the softer colors. Eye shadow should be in subdued shades to do the most for you. If your lashes are pale, definitely use mascara; otherwise your eyes will seem to recede when they should be a handsome highlight. If you have eye wrinkles and perhaps less firm eyelids, what to do? You might try — maybe for the first time, if you've been hesitant till now — extra lashes. But not dramatic ones that cause a breeze every time you blink. If the lashes are properly proportioned in a color suitable to your complexion and hair color, they can beautify discreetly.

Some women have taken care of their skin with moisturizers all their adult lives. If you're gaining in years and have just got around to it, let me say it's most important to keep at it — or get to it.

There are special creams and lotions just to moisturize the delicate skin around the eyes and neck, so helpful to the two areas that become dry as the years go on. Hand creams, too, are essential beauty aids, for pretty hands are admired all your life.

Never go to bed without removing all your make-up, and don't do this with a rough soap-and-water-and-wash-cloth scrubbing. Rather, choose a liquid or cream cleanser, literally a moisture-rich facial bath, and gently remove with a soft wash cloth if you prefer it to tissue. Then a quick rinse with a freshener. The beneficial effects of a really good night cream can continue working while you sleep.

The mature woman must assess her appearance and be ready to make changes in her hair-styling, make-up and dress that will enhance good looks. Do keep up with the latest styles, but ones that are meant for you. Don't imitate the youth market. You are you — best as yourself at whatever age.

I'd say the most important beauty aid is your attitude. Aging is inevitable, and you simply cannot spend all your time scampering around seeking softly lit rooms so your latest wrinkles won't show. Convey the confidence, poise and warmth that should grow better and better with experience.

'Crazy Salad' not a cookbook'

NEW YORK (AP) — "You can write the most wonderful piece in the world about someone and the only word they'll see is 'plump,'" said columnist Nora Ephron.

"You learn very early that you're not in this business to be friends with people you write about. If you are, you start pulling punches."

Nora Ephron has compiled a selection of her punchy articles and interviews with some people who may never talk to her again in a new book called "Crazy Salad."

The book has gone into its second printing, is a Book of the Month Club selection. The author notes with relief, it is no longer displayed in the cookbook section in book stores.

The 25 articles have appeared in various magazines and "glance off and onto the subject of 'women.'" Miss Ephron carefully scrutinizes and deftly portrays:

Julie Nixon Eisenhower ("the only woman in America over the age of 20 who still thinks her father is exactly what she thought he was when she was 6."); Rose Mary Woods, former President Richard M. Nixon's longtime secretary; transsexual Jan Morris ("Jan Morris is perfectly awful at being a woman."); Pat Loud, star-participant of the American Family documentary; "Deep Throat" star Linda Lovelace; and Martha Mitchell.

"She's one of the few people I've really been wrong about," the writer said of Mrs. Mitchell. "I followed her around for five days watching her and found her canny, in control of herself and a woman who used her reputation as a crazy lady to get jokes. I decided she wasn't crazy."

"But after thinking about it longer, I really think now she is truly whacko."

A dedicated feminist, Miss Ephron nevertheless pokes affectionate fun at her consciousness-raising group and sexual politics ("We have lived through the era when happiness was a warm puppy, and ... a dry martini and now we have come to the era when happiness is 'knowing what your uterus looks like.'")

The 34-year-old daughter of two Hollywood screenwriters, Miss Ephron credits her early upbringing with creating "this sneaky little person in my head that starts to laugh at just about everything. 'It was like living in a talk show. My three sisters and I had to fight very hard to get a word in. And the best way to get attention was to tell a funny story.'"

She is separated from her husband, author Dan Greenburg ("I just didn't really want to be married that much.") and currently dating Carl Bernstein of Washington Post-Watergate fame, whom she sees on weekly commutes to Washington.

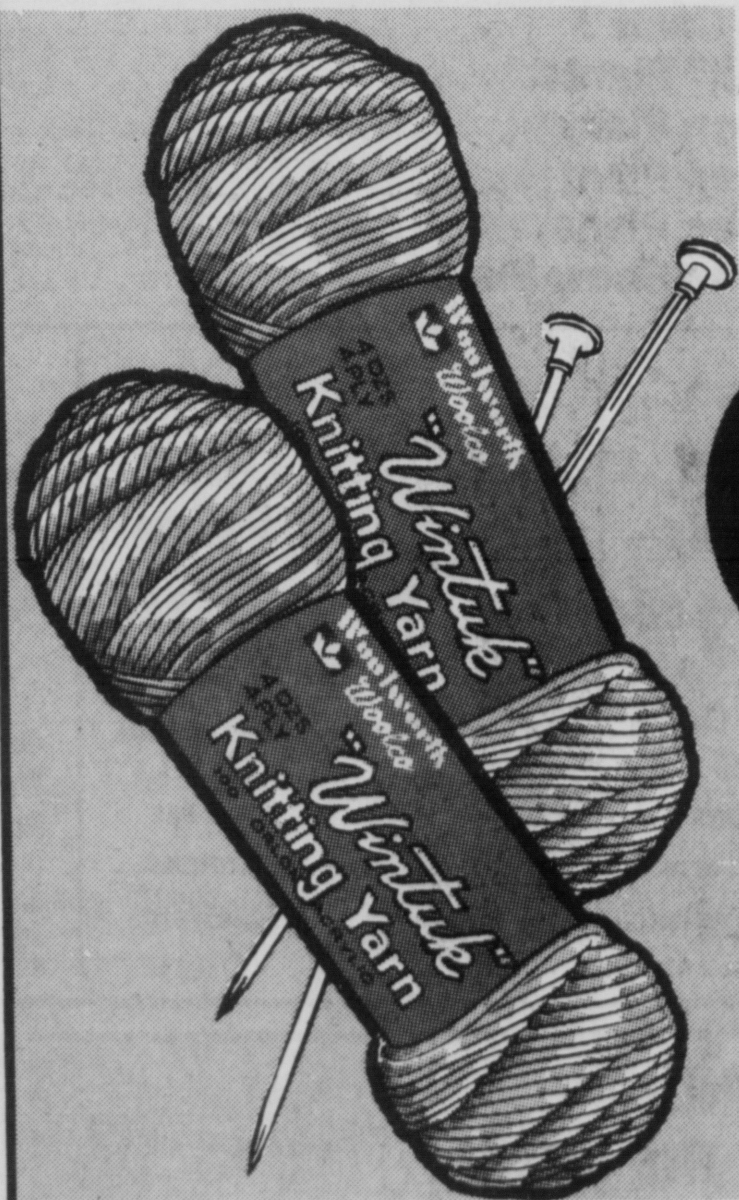

"Men dominate the conversations in Washington and therefore, as far as I am concerned, the conversations are far less interesting than those in New York," she said.

Money, time offshore oil issues

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Everybody accepts the notion that we are going to have offshore drilling. We need, first of all, some funds to prepare, and we need time to prepare," says Ronald Poitras, until recently Maine's supervisor of coastal planning.

One after another, in interviews from Maine to Florida and from Alaska to California, state and local spokesmen have echoed the same demands — time and money, to face off-shore oil's onshore impact.

What impacts?

—Big new oil refineries, tank farms and natural gas processing plants, attracted to major offshore finds.

—Tag-along petrochemical and satellite industries.

—Construction yards for the giant oil rigs; docks and support facilities.

—Pipelines.

—A population surge, fading after construction to leave communities with excess facilities they are still paying for.

—Finally, local economies built on oil and facing crisis within decades, when the oil runs out.

To many, refineries mean the smoky, sulfurous Purgatories around Bayonne, N.J., and Marcus Hook, Pa., an image the industry is trying to live down.

"We've had a lot of oil people in the area," said Mayor John Rousakis of Savannah, Ga., a likely target of oil development, "and they show us the pictures of new refineries, you know, with the white-glove approach."

"And you pray, my God, that better be true!"

Gulf Oil's Alliance Refinery, in operation since 1972 and processing up to 184,000 barrels of oil daily, is a neat stand of white towers and tanks amid green meadows, 45 minutes' drive south of New Orleans.

When a reporter dropped by, 11 of the plant's 13 cracking units were in operation. There was only a tiny wisp of steam to show it.

No visible smoke, no odor.

On the marshland road west of New Orleans, even armed with a detailed map, you can drive over the major pipeline crossing you are looking for, and never notice.

At Morgan City, La., offshore oil-support is more visible, strung out for 10 miles east of the town on Route 90: terminals, supply houses, drilling and surveying companies, and the McDermott and Avondale Shipyards where offshore rigs are constructed on the shore of a bayou, to be barged to the Gulf of Mexico.

In an ugliness contest, however, Morgan City's Route 90 is only modest competition to many of the nation's other "Industrial Highways" and "Miracle Miles."

In Baton Rouge, an attractive capital next to a huge — and smoky — refinery, Louisiana's commissioner of conservation, Ray Sutton, said, "the oil industry is not putting themselves in the position, and never have, not in Louisiana anyway, of going into an area and completely wrecking its aesthetic condition."

But Louisiana, with refineries scattered along the Mississippi River and bayous, is about 24 times as big as Delaware, which has only one big refinery — and a law barring any more from its seashore.

In New Hampshire, even one refinery was too much for a coastline only about 20 miles long, and the town of Durham refused to permit its construction.

In other states, shorelines already are sandwiched between industrial centers, and the same fears of high-density invasion are common.

But if the United States insists upon offshore oil, said Skip Webb, an aide to the governor of Delaware, it better start some long-range planning — and right now.

Offshore construction employment would grow, Webb estimated, for only about 10 years — "after 10, you start down."

"What are you going to do then with your construction workers?" he asked. "It could be they would move on. Then, what about the housing they leave behind, the empty schools?"

"You've got to be looking at those things right from the beginning, because if you don't they walk up and hit you."

Webb thought there should be some federal obligation to aid communities stranded with lasting expenses if federal offshore leasing plunges them through a boom-and-bust cycle.

The Interior Department's offshore oil man, Asst. Secretary Roy Hughes, said, "The downside of the boom-and-bust cycle is probably so far in the future we haven't given much thought to it."

In Jacksonville, Fla., however, civic leaders are thinking about it. Lex Hester, the mayor's chief executive, said that while the city might welcome offshore oil to gain the economic benefits, he's had some second thoughts about "bringing in a self-destructing industry due to shut down in 20 or 30 years."

Or, he asked, would the oil companies promise to rebuild the economy when they move out?

But Maine's coastal planning expert, Poitras, says don't count on that. Instead, he suggests Scotland's approach to the offshore boom: formation of a public corporation, with federal involvement, to ease the economic transitions.

"I don't know whose responsibility it is," said Hughes of Interior. "But it's something that ought to be looked at."

On the issue of money, there is however, at least some general agreement in principle: that coastal states should share in federal offshore revenues.

But how? The Interior Department, the oil industry and a number of states proposed a flat-rate percentage share for each state; most northeastern coastal states want a flexible guarantee of federal compensation for whatever impacts they may suffer from offshore oil.

The issue must be settled by Congress, for present law does not allow the coastal states any direct share of offshore revenue, which goes to the national treasury.

Time may be an even more controversial demand, for Interior is unwilling to grant any more delays.

Hughes said the five to eight years it takes to explore and develop a new offshore area is plenty of time for onshore planning.

But even Hughes agreed with state officials that "they can't conclusively do their planning until we get beyond the exploration stage."

Hughes said Interior might give the states a look at the companies' development plans once offshore petroleum is discovered. Poitras countered that by then it may be too late for states to exercise control.

Even before Interior sells the leases "private industry is already in here looking for sites, buying up land ... they've already bought an option for land in the Portland area for, I guess, platform construction," noted Poitras.

Hughes himself noted that Brown and Root, an offshore platform construction company, has purchased 2,000 acres near Cape Charles Va., more than a year before the first scheduled mid-Atlantic lease sale.

Alaska's Gov. Jay Hammond has reported that shore property "is rapidly being purchased by oil companies for onshore support centers," months before the scheduled Gulf of Alaska lease sale.

Under present rules, Interior sells a single offshore lease entitling a company to explore for petroleum and to produce petroleum.

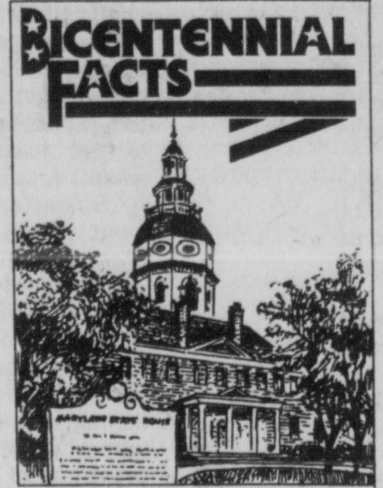

Many state officials want exploration separated from production — separate authorizations, or at least a delay in between — to give them time to prepare, once they know for what to prepare.

Interior opposes separation or delay as impractical.

But can the states control development if oil companies have already moved in by the time states are let in on the offshore secrets?

"There's no clear answer to it," said Hughes.

"I guess my bottom-line argument would be that it's in the national interest to move ahead."

After an impressive 28-11 season

Statistics explain Dukes record

By JIM FOX

Telegraph Sports Writer

The 1975 Dixon Dukes summer baseball season is now history. Dixon improved tremendously in all aspects in its second year of the sport.

The end-of-season statistics back up the impressive 28-11 record. Dixon closed the year with a fine .263 team batting average, collecting 251 hits in 956 at bats.

Mike Morrissey led all Dukes hitters with a consistent .391 average. Morrissey missed the final five games of the season bringing up speculation whether or not the junior third baseman-pitcher could have hit over .400.

Doug Devine, catcher in all 39 Dixon games, came on strong in the last week of action to finish with a .303 average. Devine was able to up his average considerably when he started to switch-hit the last half of the season. Devine, a natural rightie, picked up good hits on the left side of the plate.

Although Vince Melendrez fell under .300 with a mild slump the last week, the junior hurler kept the team going with his super-hot bat in the middle of the season. Melendrez, who went from .090 to .328 in a two-week span, had one stretch of 10 straight solid base hits.

Dave Zinnen contributed a valuable stick and eye to the team. Zinnen reached first via the base-on-balls route an amazing 29 times, to lead the team. The sophomore second baseman also collected 23 base hits in compiling a .359 batting average. Zinnen, who missed the first 11 games of the season due to injury, had a very high base average.

Gregg Mullery ended his DHS baseball career with a .318 average, picking up 21 hits in 66 at bats. The senior displayed extra-base power with two homers, five doubles and a triple. Mullery plans to attend Arizona State University this fall.

Stan Hack, an underrated fielder at short-stop, did not have a very impressive year with the bat, finishing at .198 with 18 hits in 91 at bats. Hack did start to hit with authority the last eight games, picking up seven base hits to go along with his fine fielding.

Dan Kopacz could be termed the ideal lead-off man, as the junior outfielder led the team in runs scored with 32. Kopacz has speed, is a smart base runner and gets on base often.

Matt Rhodes and Mark Appleman also played their last season for the Dukes. Rhodes hit .211 with 11 hits in 52 at bats while Appleman collected two hits for the year. Rhodes plans to attend Illinois State University.

Melendrez pitched a fine season picking up nine wins in 13 decisions. The fireballer dominated the pitching staff in innings worked (95) and strikeouts (106). Melendrez's 3.03 earned-run average was the lowest on the staff.

Morrissey compiled the best won-lost percentage with a 6-0 record. The strong hurler gave up 19 runs in 42 innings for a 3.17 ERA. Morrissey also did a fine job for the Dukes in a few tough relief calls.

John Kemp had a 6-3 record with a 4.62 ERA in 56 innings of work this year. The sophomore pitcher showed excellent control walking only 19 batters the whole season. Kemp whiffed 58 opponents in his nine outings.

Mullery came on strong, winning his last four straight games for a 5-2 mark. The senior worked only 39 innings, allowing 18 runs for a 3.26 ERA. Mullery fanned 37 batters in his 39 frames. Greg Dogwiler saw limited pitching action in recording a 1-2 won-lost record. Dogwiler threw 30 innings, giving up 22 runs for an ERA of 5.25.

The entire pitching staff had an ERA of 3.68 over 261 innings. The five hurlers fanned 262 batters, walked 140 and allowed 260 hits, nine more than the Dukes collected on the year. Dixon did outscore the opponents 223-187.

In other important categories Zinnen led in walks with 29, followed by Devine's 26, Melendrez's 24, John Blackburn's 23, Kopacz's 22, Mullery's 19, Rhodes' 17, Morrissey's 16 and Barry Barton with 15.

Melendrez held team-leading honors in stolen bases with 22. Kopacz was a distant second at 14 while Mullery swiped 11 on the year. Devine and Rhodes stole eight bases.

In 39 games Dixon committed 98 errors, or just over two a game. The infield, including pitchers and catcher, committed the largest amount of miscues with 73. The home-run team leader ended in a two-way tie between Kopacz and Morrissey with four apiece. Kemp poked three four-baggers out while Mullery and Devine hit two each.

Morrissey drove in 37 runs in going away with the RBI title. Devine picked up 18 RBI for a second-place finish. Mullery, Zinnen and Kopacz drove in 14 apiece while Hack and Melendrez plated 12 each. Kemp was the last Duke in double figures, with 11 RBI.

The most valuable player award, in this reporter's opinion, goes to Mike Morrissey for his heavy hitting, pitching, fine fielding, 37 RBI and numerous game-winning hits the junior collected. Morrissey's mouth and spirit kept the players going and the game alive. Randy Paisley, an MVP prediction by this reporter last year, was named the most valuable player for the 1974 Dixon Dukes by Coach Herb Jennings after the initial season.

If there was a co-MVP it would go to Devine for his great defensive catching in all 39 Dixon games. His possession of a bullet arm, batting over .300 and great desire also put him right up there next to Morrissey.

Offensive player of the year would go to Morrissey with his .391 average. The outstanding defensive player would go to second-baseman Zinnen because of his excellent range, heads-up playing and beautiful fielding.

Pitcher of the year would go to Melendrez with his 9-4 record in the role of workhorse on the Dixon pitching staff. Melendrez's 3.03 ERA and 106 strikeouts in 95 innings are the key reasons for his selection.

The best sportsmanlike award would go to Kemp for his super attitude throughout the season. Again, these awards are my opinion in viewing all but one game this past season. The actual MVP and captain awards will be presented by Jennings at a picnic banquet Aug. 10.

This reporter would like to take this last opportunity to thank Coach Jennings, all the players on the Dixon squad and the fine parent-fans for all their support, assistance and backing during the season.

'Routine game' as Expos win 6-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Montreal Manager Gene Mauch had to go back a long time to remember when he saw a hitter score on a bunt.

"The last time I saw it happen I was seven years old and my daddy did it in a softball game," Mauch said Wednesday afternoon after his Expos downed the Chicago Cubs 6-1. "I don't think I've ever seen a man in professional ball bunt a ball and score."

It happened in the third inning when catcher Gary Carter beat out an infield bunt and moved to third on Bill Madlock's errant throw to first. Pete LaCock scrambled for the ball and tossed it into left field as Carter came home.

"It was a routine game," quipped Mauch, who remembered the two strange plays in the past two games with the Cubs. One occurred Monday when two Cubs were on third base and both were called out and another one happened Tuesday when Barry Foote hit an apparent home run, which only went for a double.

Expo pitcher Steve Rogers tossed an eight-hitter for his second complete game to move his record to 8-7 for the season. He held the Cubs hitless until the fourth inning when Rick Monday led off with his 13th homer of the year.

Montreal's balanced offense was led by Mike Jorgensen, who smashed a single, a double and his ninth home run of the season, as the Expos pounded out 13 hits against four Cub pitchers.

"Rogers pitched like I thought he would pitch and we hit like I'd like us to hit," Mauch said. "If we scored six runs every game, all our pitchers would be winners."

Chicago Manager Jim Marshall's assessment wasn't so glittering as he said, "It was the least exciting Cub game since the All-Star game."

Jorgensen hit a solo homer off Roy Burris, 8-8, in the third inning to give Montreal a 4-0 lead.

The Expos opened the scoring in the second after two were out when Pete Mackanin walked. Tim Foli singled and Rogers knocked in Mackanin. Pepe Mangual then singled to score Foli.

The Expos added another run in the fifth to chase Burris on Jim Dwyer's double and Larry Blittner's single, then scored their final run in the eighth on a double by Foli and a single by Dwyer.

Beside Monday's home run, the Cubs could muster little offense except in the eighth inning. Chicago filled the bases on infield hits by Don Kessinger, Madlock and Jose Cardenal, but Jerry Morales flied out to end the inning.

The Expos return home today to face the Philadelphia Phillies. The Cubs open a five-game homestand against St. Louis with Steve Stone, 8-5, pitching for Chicago against Harry Rasmussen, 1-1.

White Sox lose in ninth

ANAHEIM (AP) — John Doherty was a master of good timing Wednesday night. Good for him. Not so hot for the Chicago White Sox.

Doherty, on the threshold of being returned to the minor leagues because of a meager .194 batting average, lined a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning to cap a three-run rally and lift the California Angels to a come-from-behind 5-4 victory.

"In that spot you either do or you don't," said Doherty. "You can't take too many pitches ... if you see something you like you've gotta swing."

Rich Gossage, the Chisox reliever, obviously threw something Doherty was delighted to see.

"He's probably the best in the league," Doherty said of Gossage, who has recorded 15 saves for Chicago this summer. "He comes right at you."

Nolan Ryan was the beneficiary of the Angel rally and won his second in a row to boost his record to 12-11. The loser was Jim Kaat, 15-8. Ryan was rocked for three runs in the first inning when Ken Henderson rammed a two-run single and Carlos May drove in a run and the Sox extended their lead to 4-0 in the third.

Kaat, the winningest pitcher in the Majors, was only three outs away from No. 16 when the roof caved in.

Lee Stanton walked and singles by Tommy Harper and John Balaz loaded the bases. Gossage was called in to face pinch-hitter Joe Lahoud but Lahoud walked on four pitches before Doherty connected, scoring Harper and pinch-runner Morris Nettles, who ran through coach Grover Kesinger's stop sign at third base and still beat Nyls Nyman's off-line throw.

Ryan walked seven, hit a batter and gave up eight hits but pitching coach Billy Muffett said his performance over the last three innings was "the best in a long time."

BOB PINEGAR (70) blocks Rochelle's Brad Miller while Dixon running back Mike LeBlanc (20) swerves in an attempt to elude would-be tackler Joe Peters during the Hubs-Dukes non-conference football game at Rochelle last season. Less than two weeks remain until the start of 1975 high school football practice sessions. (Telegraph Photo)

Third time lucky?

MT. MORRIS—Is the third time a lucky one? The Mt. Morris Jaycees baseball team will find out the weekend of Aug. 7-10 when they play in the West Central Regional Tournament of the American Amateur Baseball Congress at Independence, Mo. The Jaycees will be in the Mickey Mantle Division classic for the third year in a row and this team shapes up as the best of the three which have represented the Mound City.

Mt. Morris won the championship of the Northern Illinois AABC League with a dazzling 10-0 record to earn the right to take the Illinois spot in the Regional. Overall, Manager Ralph Webber's club has a 13-1 record, the only loss an 8-4 setback at the hands of Rochelle in an early-season exhibition game.

The Jaycees have rolled up a nine-game winning streak since that defeat and appear to be ready for a serious Regional bid. Mickey Mantle baseball is for boys age 15-16. Winner of the Regional moves on to the Mantle World Series at Sherman, Tex., Aug. 14-19.

In the first game of the Regional at Chrysler Stadium in Independence, Mt. Morris will meet the Minnesota champ at 6 p.m. on Aug. 7. A victory would propel the Jaycees into a Saturday-night game at 8 p.m. and a sure shot in Sunday's final round of play. A Thursday loss would put Mt. Morris into a 6 p.m. Friday loser's bracket game in the double-elimination meeting.

Members of the squad are Ron Ballard, Dave Bjorklund, Donn Claussen, Ron Claussen, Dave Deaconson, Ken Diehl, Curt Floski, Dennis Kessler, Brian Macklin, Pat Marshall, Greg Watt, Todd Wiggins, Kevin Windett and Dan Van Scotter. In the AABC, tournament teams may add to their rosters from teams in their own league and Mt. Morris has secured the services of three outstanding athletes, Rick McKnight of Monroe Center and Brad Miller and Rick Roop of Leaf River.

Names omitted

The names of Jamie Stewart, Todd Ogan and Bill Bart were omitted from the Future League All-Star write-up on Wednesday. Stewart, Ogan and Bart played with the National League team.

Uhe resigns

Roger Uhe, who was named head varsity basketball coach at Oregon High School earlier this summer, has submitted his resignation at Oregon to assume the top varsity basketball position at Jacksonville High School. Uhe was the Oregon frosh-soph coach last season and had previously spent time as the Hawks varsity coach before being succeeded by Dick Reavis.

Bears cut six

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Players have been coming and going in all directions as the Chicago Bears firm up their 1975 roster.

The Bears cut six rookies and first-year men from the squad on Tuesday, and Wednesday trimmed to 77 with a flurry of transactions.

The Bears said they have recalled waivers on kickers Mike Dean and Berl Simmons, cut veteran offensive tackle Steve Kinney, traded defensive tackle Greg Wojcik and placed safety Norm Hodgins on waivers where he was claimed and awarded to Green Bay.

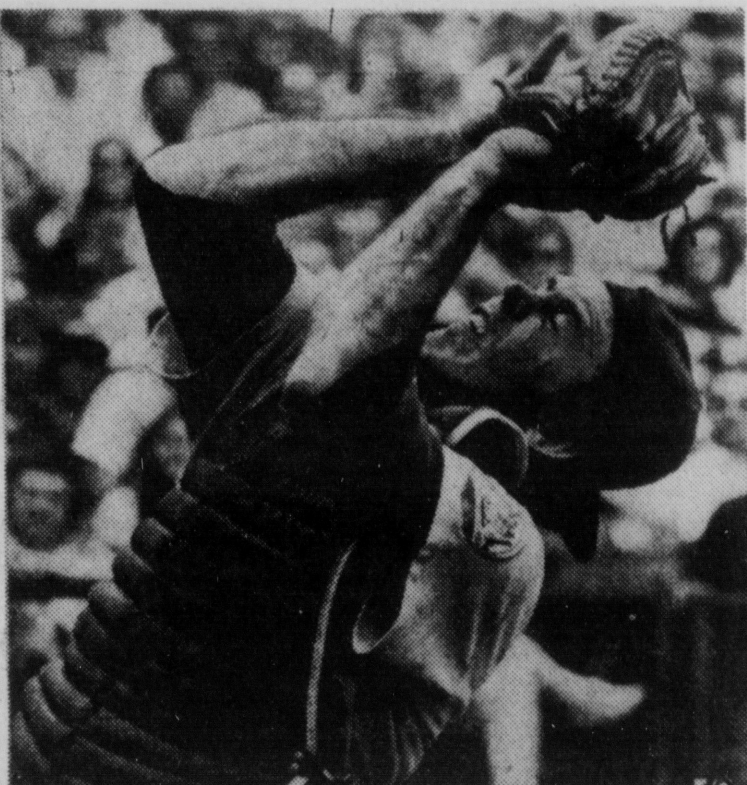

Dean went to Buffalo for an undisclosed draft pick. St. Louis picked up Wojcik in exchange for center Wesley Miller, a first-year free agent who played at Utah State from 1970-72.

Simmons was awarded to Detroit on waivers, a Bears spokesman said.

Kinney, a third-year pro from Utah State, started six games last year at left tackle.

The newest Bear, Miller, 6-foot-2, 255-pounds, played for the Hartford Knights in the Atlantic Semi-Pro League in 1973 and was in the San Diego Chargers camp a year ago.

Hodgins was starting his second year with the squad after playing in all 14 regular season games last year, primarily on specialty teams.

GRITTY GRAB—New York Mets' catcher Jerry Grote closes his eyes as he makes catch versus the Cincinnati Reds.

White will help

CHICAGO (AP) — "Imagine him roaring down the line and crushing people play after play," says a pro football executive about Randy White, who the College All-Stars are counting on to help stop the Pittsburgh Steelers' offense Friday night.

"He is 6-4 and weighs 248 pounds, runs a 4.6 forty, bench presses 450 pounds and is as quick as anything," said Gil Brandt, in charge of player development for the Dallas Cowboys.

The Cowboys traded quarterback Craig Morton for the New York Giants' first-round college pick to get White, the second player tagged in this year's draft.

He'll be used at end and as a linebacker for the All-Star game but he won his honors at the University of Maryland as a lineman, last year picking up the Outland and Lombardi trophies.

White credits a weightlifting and running program started by Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne with his success.

"That program helped me tremendously," he said. "It not only made me stronger, it helped me in everything."

In four years, White's weight climbed from 215 to 240 pounds and he lowered his time in the 40-yard dash from 4.9 to 4.6 seconds.

But playing linebacker Friday night won't be a new experience for him.

"I had been a linebacker ever since I was 10 years old," he said. "I was more like a tailback because I carried the ball, passed it and caught it."

But at Maryland, he was changed to a lineman and didn't complain. "I didn't say anything when they switched me. I was a freshman and just wanted to play," White explained.

And White will have to play the best game of his life to stop Terry Bradshaw, quarterback for the world champion Steelers.

Brazil to call shots on coffee

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A frost that officials say has killed half of Brazil's 1976-77 coffee crop is expected to work in the country's favor by turning the world coffee market into one dictated by producers and not consumers, experts here say.

This is because Brazil has huge stockpiles of coffee that it can filter out into the world market at will and at a higher price.

Coffee prices have risen already by 50 per cent in the past month. Earlier this week, the General Foods Corp. announced in New York an increase of 20 cents a pound for ground coffees and 3 cents an ounce for instant and freeze-dried brands.

"The cards are now in Brazil's hands," one commodity firm executive said. "The world stockpiles are suddenly low and the tables have been turned. We expect a squeeze situation with producers, not consumers, dictating prices."

The Brazilian Coffee Institute, a government agency which buys coffee from plantation owners in cruzeiros and exports it in return for dollars and other hard currencies, this week jacked up the price of coffee for Brazilian domestic use by 59 per cent. Brazilians consume 7.5 million bags of coffee a year. A bag contains 132 pounds.

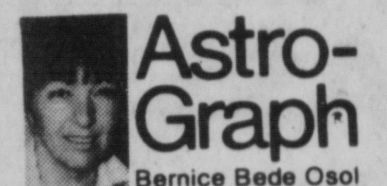

Before the frost hit in the coffee-growing states of Parana, Sao Paulo and Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil harvested 21 million bags of coffee.

The 1976-77 harvest was starting to grow when the frost hit and the Brazilian Coffee Institute had predicted another 21-million-bag year. But now the institute says half of this was wiped out by the frost.

The institute maintains, however, what it calls an "untouchable" stockpile of 15 million bags — enough to supply nearly 30 per cent of the world's needs. Exporters estimate that another 7 million bags are privately stockpiled.

Thus, experts say, Brazil now has on hand 43 million bags of coffee — or 5.6 billion pounds — enough to supply 80 per cent of the world market.

They add that this heavy stockpile puts Brazil in a position to hold back for higher prices for its 1975 crop because of the threat of shortages next year.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE E-628: Rita R., aged 16, is a very unhappy high school junior.

"Dr. Crane," she began dolefully, "I have no real friends, even among the girls."

"And boys don't ask me for dates."

"Yet I try to dress in the modern fashion and don't have dandruff, 'B.O.' or halitosis."

"So why can't I be popular?"

"Why, some of the girls in my class aren't any more attractive looking than I am, yet next year they will be competing for our annual 'Popularity Queen'."

"But nobody even thinks about nominating me for that honor."

"Dr. Crane, what's wrong with me that I don't have friends?"

Popularity Secrets
All friends, including sweethearts, must be bought!

That may sound mercenary and many sentimental lovers will disagree.

But muse over the following basic psychological recipe for winning popularity:

First, in early grammar school, many shy, timid and friendless kiddies may filch money from mamma's purse to purchase candy or ice cream cones, which they pass around to their classmates as a bribe for friendship.

In the teens, many coeds with sports cars or membership in Country Clubs, may likewise try to purchase popularity by letting their classmates ride in their new car or join them in a swim at the Country Club pool.

That is merely a little more deft form of bribing popularity than the 3rd graders used via candy and ice cream cones!

But a much surer way of winning friends is to remember that with the severing of the umbilical cord in every newborn infant, the baby is figuratively branded across the chest.

And that invisible but potent tattoo says:

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT."

It is on everybody's chest, including President Ford and even the lowliest worker, including illiterates and feeble-minded!

Rita is wise to make herself look as attractive as possible.

But her good looks don't make other girls (or boys) feel more important, unless she joins the "Compliment Club."

For her personal beauty may actually alienate other girls and make them jealous, unless she pays them compliments, by verbal and of the sign language variety!

She should smile at her companions, for that cheery grin says, in sign language:

"Your presence is pleasing to me so I hope we can be friends."

That immediately begins to make her companion feel more important.

Then Rita can follow up with a sincere bit of spoken (verbal) praise about the other girl's hairdo or dimples, pretty teeth or dress.

We have an axiom of psychology that states:

We cannot feel ill toward those who have publicly shown they think well of us!

So Rita's classmates will begin to like her.

Basically, of course, she will have "bought" their favor by giving them something they relished.

Though it is not candy or ice cream cones or even a ride in a new sports car, her praise will count even more.

For it inflates the ego of her companions!

So send for my "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, for it shows you the "five Laws for Complimenting."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I owe you a note of thanks after reading your column on the use of bran for bulk in our diet. I cross my fingers, and it still works fine.

I'm 73 years old and have used a walker for more than 15 years because of a broken hip, and the bulk from bran has really improved my life.

DEAR READER — Thank you. Doctors are human and like to hear when someone has benefited from one of their suggestions. I'm no exception.

Many people have been surprised at how much better their bowels function after including more bulk in the diet from bran, whole wheat products, whole wheat bread and bulky vegetables. It takes some people three weeks to get through the stage of adjustment from the change in the diet, but it helps most people who have been eating diets low in bulk.

And, I wanted to put your letter in the column also to remind my readers that senior citizens with longstanding problems such as yours can profit from improving their diet. There are very few instances in which bulk will not be tolerated. It is often necessary, though, to get over the idea that bulk is roughage and realize that most of it, when moistened by digestive action, is "softage" and is not rough or harmful.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me how a blood clot in the lungs affects a person. What causes it? Is it visible on an X ray? I would also like to know how it should be treated?

DEAR READER — Most blood clots in the lungs come from clots that have formed in the legs or lower part of the body. They dislodge and pass through the right side of the heart into the lungs.

Such clots are always dangerous. A clot may be small and cause few symptoms, but larger ones usually cause chest pain, even shock and death. The attack resembles a heart attack and it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the two.

Many of the clots that lodge in the lung can be seen in the lungs or the effect can be seen. Large clots, though, that nearly obstruct a main, large artery to the lungs sometimes need to be diagnosed by more accurate means, including injecting dye into the circulation and in this way seeing the obstruction.

The treatment depends on the individual case. Emergency treatment is sometimes needed as a life-saving measure. The source of the clots is usually important. Treatment attempts to prevent more clot formation or release of those already formed. This is why bedrest is often used when the leg is involved. The leg may be kept elevated and heat may be used.

Medicines to prevent clotting are usually indicated.

Tax revolt evident in rejection rates

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Americans fed up with rising taxes have rejected proposed school budgets at a record rate this year, defeating spending plans requiring increased levies on property and other items.
An Associated Press spot check showed the mood of discontent seemed strongest on the East and West Coasts, although there were signs of rebellion elsewhere.
New York State officials said 622 school district budgets were submitted to voters during May and June. They said a record 155 or 23.4 per cent were rejected. The previous high rate of defeat was in 1969 when just under 20 per cent of the budgets were rejected.
The biggest setbacks came in suburban areas where property taxes already are high. Some of the proposed tax increases ranged up to 20 per cent, with local authorities claiming they needed the money because state aid to education is not keeping pace with inflation.
The trade publication, the Nation's Schools & Colleges, estimated recently that it cost almost $1,170 to educate the average public school student in the academic year that ended last month. That was 14.4 per cent higher than a year earlier and school officials say next year's costs are rising even faster.

The biggest expense for most districts — ranging up to 80 per cent in some areas — is salaries, with fuel costs running second on the list of problems.
Local taxes on real estate and personal property provide the largest chunk of school funding in many areas and the voter rejections of levy increases have forced authorities to reshuffle budgets and cut spending to keep within existing revenues.

Maynard Mathison, a spokesman for the superintendent of public instruction in the state of Washington, said about 2,000 teachers are losing their jobs as a result of the cutbacks.
Washington officials said voters in 67 of the 275 school districts that had elections this spring turned down spending proposals, for a rejection rate of 24 per cent. In contrast, only 9 per cent of the tax plans submitted to the voters last year were defeated.

The turn-downs — including one in Seattle where voters rejected the proposed budget in two separate elections — affected about 300,000 of the state's 750,000 pupils.

On this date:
In 1498, Christopher Columbus sighted the island of Trinidad.

Ten years ago: Yugoslav President Tito was reported making back-stage diplomatic moves to try to end warfare in Vietnam.
Five years ago: The U.S. announced that the Soviets had test-fired two improved intercontinental ballistic missiles into the Pacific Ocean.
One year ago: A cease-fire agreement took effect between Turkey and Greece in the fighting on Cyprus.
Today's birthday: Former big league baseball manager Hank Bauer is 53.
Thought for today: Behind every argument is someone's ignorance — Louis Brandeis, U.S. Supreme Court justice, 1856-1941.
Bicentennial footnote: It was 200 years ago today that the Continental Congress in Philadelphia rejected a Resolution for Conciliation made by Britain's Lord North.
